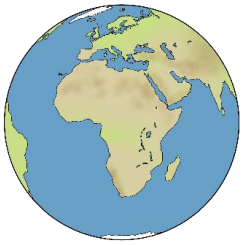
What is this exhibition about?



Dear Earth is an exhibition about our planet, Earth.

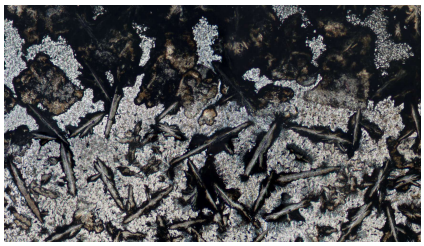
The artists are sending a message to Earth.

They want people to think about how we care for the planet.

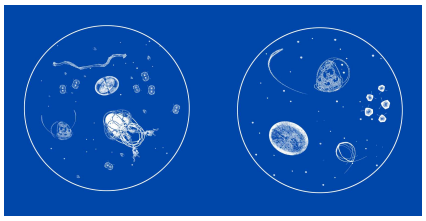
Some things in this guide might make you feel worried. You might want to read it with someone you trust.

The artworks

The exhibition has different kinds of art. For example:



- Photography



- Printmaking

- Ceramics

- Art made from objects

- Art installations . An art installation is a type of artwork that fills a space.

The world today

Many people are worried about the future of our planet.

They are worried about:

- Climate change

  Climate change means the Earth is getting hotter over time.

- Pollution

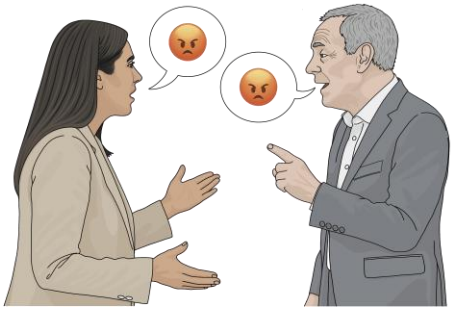
  Pollution means harmful chemicals getting into the land, air and water.

- plants and animals dying out

People sometimes feel angry and upset when they think about the future.



People argue about what we should do.

Finding hope

The artists in Dear Earth feel worried about the planet too. But they also feel hope.

Their art shows care for the Earth.

They remind us that we can take action to protect Earth. We can change things and make them better.

It is okay to feel unsure about the future.

But we can keep learning, caring, and finding a way forward together.

Climate Care Corner

There is a Climate Care Corner in the gallery.

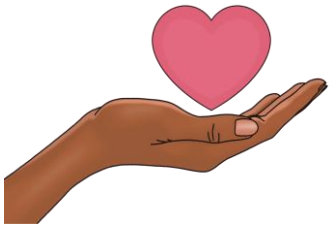
It is at the top of the stairs, next to the main exhibition space.

This area has:

- Information



- Support

- A quiet place to sit and think. You can take time there if you need it.
